

Troy University Non-Immigrant Alien Employment Procedures

Purpose: The purpose of these procedures is to outline steps to implement the Troy Non-immigrant Alien Employment Policy.

Definitions:

Dependent – spouse or child of a non-immigrant alien.

Green Card - A green card (pink or light blue in color) is given to foreign nationals who have obtained the right to live and work in the US without time limits (permanent resident status).

Immigrant - someone who intends to live and work permanently in the US (requires a Green Card).

Non-Immigrant Alien - someone who wishes to come to the US on a temporary basis to visit or work (requires a Visa).

Visa - A Visa is a permit to enter the US for a particular purpose. There are different types of Visas depending on the nature of the visit and the country of citizenship.

General:

1. The need for a Visa for non-immigrant alien employment should be determined prior to making a conditional offer of employment. A subsequent condition of the offer, then, is the ability of the candidate and Troy University to obtain an appropriate Visa.
2. The hiring supervisor is responsible for initiating these procedures.
3. Troy University will pay for or reimburse anti-fraud fees and application fees for the potential employee. Troy University will not pay for or reimburse fees to expedite Visas or application fees for dependents.
4. Hiring supervisors will not issue faculty contracts or make commitments for employment that would exceed time limitations of the alien employee's current or planned Visa status.

Responsibilities:

Executive Vice Chancellor and Provost

Provide University checks made out to USCIS and Bureau of Homeland Security for appropriate fees, (currently $190 filing and $500 anti-fraud fees, subject to change).

Vice Chancellors and Deans

Collect, endorse, and forward Sponsor Cover Letter and Preliminary Data Sheets, Part I and II to Human Resources.

Department Chairs and Directors (Supervisors)

1. Determine candidate's citizenship status prior to making a conditional offer of employment.
2. Coordinate pre-employment actions with HR.

3. Collect Preliminary Data Sheet, Part II, from the candidate.
4. Originate and forward Sponsor Cover Letter and Preliminary Data Sheet, Part I, with Part II attached, to appropriate Vice Chancellor or Dean.

Human Resources

1. File Prevailing wage request with Alabama Department of Industrial Relations.
2. Publicly post University's intent to employ non-immigrant aliens and/or sponsor immigrant alien application.
3. File Labor Condition Application with Department of Labor.
4. File USCIS Form I-129 and supporting documents with Department of Homeland Security.
5. Assist University's Agent in filing Immigrant requests.

Categories of Visas: Troy University will sponsor Visas in the following categories: H-1b, F-1 and J-1 for practical or academic training, TN, O-1, and Immigrant Visas.

then completes the application and files the appropriate materials with the Department of Labor (DOL) and CIS. Human Resources notifies the department, scholar, and Payroll Office when an initial or extension H-1b petition is approved.

Limitations and Payment

H-1b status may be approved for a total of six years: up to a three-year initial period and up to a three-year extension. The six-year limit applies whether the scholar has changed jobs or remained with the same employer. An H-1b scholar sponsored by Troy and appointed at Troy must generally be paid by Troy. Funding by outside sources is acceptable if the funding is funneled through Troy Sponsored Programs and meets other criteria. In all cases, funding levels must meet DOL guidelines.

A Troy appointment is only authorized once CIS has approved an H-1b petition and H-1b status for the particular scholar, unless the scholar is already in the United States in a valid status that includes employment authorization. H-1b status is employer-specific such that only the petitioner(s) may employ the individual. If an individual is in H-1b status for employment elsewhere, that individual is authorized for Troy employment only if Troy also files and obtains approval for a transfer of an H-1b Visa.

Dependent H-4 Visas

The spouse and children of an H-1b may have H-4 Visa status. They may not work under any circumstances. It is possible for an individual in H-4 status to attend school. Petitioning alien is responsible for Visa fees for dependents.

(2). F-1 and J-1 Students On Practical Or Academic Training

An international student who will complete a degree at a university in the United States may be eligible to apply for a period of training and employment authorization in the field of study immediately upon degree completion. The F-1 student is eligible for a maximum of 12 months of "practical training." The J-1 student is eligible for 18 months of "academic training" or, if the student has completed a doctorate and will do postdoctoral research, up to 36 months. Extensions of practical or academic training beyond these periods are not permitted. It may be possible to apply to CIS for change of status, to H-1b or J-1 scholar, for continued employment.

Both F-1 and J-1 students may apply for practical training in advance of receiving their degrees through the international student office at the university where their degree is to be granted. Departments should urge prospective practical trainees to apply for this permission well in advance of the proposed start of appointment or employment at Troy. CIS will issue an Employment Authorization Document (EAD), a small laminated card, as proof of employment eligibility to F-1 practical trainees. J-1s do not need EADs but should possess evidence of academic training authorization with a valid Form

DS-2019. F-1 or J-1 scholars in this status must register with the International Student Office and Human Resources if they are on academic appointment at Troy.

Permission to Work for J-2 Dependents

Spouses and children who hold J-2 visas are usually able to obtain permission to work from CIS. J-2s may work anywhere and at any level in the United States. CIS will issue an Employment Authorization Document (EAD), a small laminated photo ID card, as proof of employability. J-2s who are appointed to the academic staff or sponsored research staff (paid or unpaid) must have employment authorization and must register with HR. Petitioning alien is responsible for Visa fees for dependents.

Two-year Foreign Residence Requirement

Some J-1 visa holders are required to return home for two years before they are eligible for either an immigrant visa or an H or L nonimmigrant visa classification. This requirement is the result of agreements between the student or scholar's home government and DOS, or funding from a government agency, such as the Fulbright Commission or the Medical Research Council of Canada. In some cases, DOS and CIS issue waivers of this requirement. Depending on the circumstances, waivers can be difficult to obtain. Those who have questions regarding the residence requirement should discuss them with the HR staff.

Payment

Practical trainees may be paid a salary by Troy, a fellowship from an outside organization, or may be supported by personal funds.

(3). TN Visa For Canadian And Mexican Professionals

TN is a temporary, nonimmigrant status available on a yearly basis for Canadian or Mexican citizens only. TN status is employer specific and must be for specific qualifying professions as listed by CIS. TN dependents are classified as "TD" and are not eligible for employment. The procedures for Canadians and Mexicans to obtain TN status are quite different. Canadian citizens are not issued Visa stamps and instead are admitted to the United States in TN status when they present appropriate documentation to immigration inspectors at the point of entry. Their TN status is then noted on Form I-94. For Mexicans, the employer must send documentation to DOL and CIS for approval in advance. Mexican citizens must then obtain TN Visa stamps before being admitted to the United States with the TN notation on Form I-94.

For Canadians or Mexicans who will hold academic staff or sponsored research staff positions, HR will help determine the appropriate Visa and will assist with TN applications.

(4). O-1 Visa For Individuals Of Extraordinary Ability In Sciences, Arts, Education, Business Or Athletics

O-1 Visa status is another temporary, nonimmigrant category. Those eligible include professionals and people highly distinguished in their fields (in the top 10% of the field) who will work in that field at Troy. The position to be filled must be temporary or, if the position is a permanent one, the scholar must plan to fill it only temporarily. Human Resources is the only petitioner to CIS for O-1 status based on Troy employment. Attorneys are not authorized to do this work. Decisions regarding Troy support of an O-1 application are made in Human Resources after consulting with the department, laboratory, or center

United States in a valid status that includes employment authorization. O-1s may be employed only by the petitioner. If an individual is in O-1 status for employment elsewhere, that individual is not authorized for employment at Troy unless Troy also files and obtains approval of an O-1 petition.

Dependent Visas

The spouse and children of an O-1 have O-3 Visa status. They may not work under any circumstances. It is possible for an individual in O-3 status to attend school. Petitioning alien is responsible for Visa fees for dependents.

(5). Immigrant Visas (Permanent Residents)

People immigrate to the United States in a variety of ways: sponsored by relatives who are United States citizens or permanent residents, sponsored by employers who offer them permanent jobs, or as refugees or asylees. Human Resources assists those who are immigrating based on their employment at Troy. Any employee desiring to apply for immigrant status will have to retain the services of an immigration attorney or service. Approval of that agent working for the university is at the discretion of HR.

Decisions regarding Troy support of an immigrant Visa application are made in Human Resources after consulting with the department, laboratory, or center head. Typically, tenure-track faculty members are eligible for sponsorship assuming DOL and/or CIS criteria can be met. A number of factors are considered when deciding whether Troy will support an immigration application for research positions. These include the level of the position, how long the scholar has been at Troy, the permanence of the position and the likelihood of long-term employment at Troy, the level and certainty of funding for the position, the search that was conducted to fill the position, the availability of qualified American citizens and permanent resident workers in the field, the qualifications of the scholar, and the department head's support for the case.

Troy can only pursue permanent residence for individuals whose particular immigration status, Visa history, and situation would not preclude it. In order to be sponsored, faculty members must meet the criteria for the first preference classification, "Outstanding Professor/Researcher;" or for the second preference classification under the "Special Handling" provisions. Researchers must meet criteria for a first preference classification, "Outstanding Professor/Researcher" or "Extraordinary Ability."
